A Lot of Nerve

Last week we saw how the disciples rejoiced to suffer for their faith. This week we see them turn away from their persecutors and begin preaching to the Gentiles. Even though they are thrown out of town, they still are filled with joy (Acts 13:50-52). What I find interesting is that the disciples' joy comes from their failure to convert the Jewish leaders in Antioch. If those Jews had become believers and had not rejected Paul and Barnabas, the disciples probably would never have thought to preach to non-Jews about Jesus.

I think that failure to convert their own people allowed them to see how God's power was working for them. That's why their joy was so great. They were not just congratulating themselves on how well they were preaching. No, they saw how God was doing the real work. And that took the pressure off of them. They could stop worrying about every word of their preaching, or being afraid that someone might make fun of them. ("Isn't that Saul, who used to persecute Jesus' followers? He's got a lot of nerve thinking he could now be one of them.") None of that mattered, because they knew that the Spirit was leading them. They knew they were in God's hands, as we heard in the Gospel (John 10:28).

Can we be like those disciples? Instead of getting angry at frustrations, can we see them as an opportunity to experience God's grace? Do we let our failures get us down, or do we let God bring us through them, teaching us to rely on the Lord? Of course, the disciples didn't go around looking for ways to suffer. But they did look for ways to share their great news that Jesus is risen from the dead. Let us ask the Lord to send us the Spirit to show us how we can spread that same news.

Pastor's Letter

May 11, 2025

Dear Family:

In early Christian thought, one of the signs that confirmed the resurrection was the explosive growth of the Church. The readings this Sunday each reflect on that growth from a different viewpoint. The Gospel reading especially notes the way that Jesus' death and resurrection opened the life he shared with God to any person who believed in him and followed his commandments.

This "opening up" is the topic of this Sunday's first two readings. Paul and Barnabas receive great hospitality in Antioch, but after a brief time they encounter opposition. Although Paul identifies his opponents as "Jews," it is important to remember that great crowds of Jewish people had also gathered to hear Paul and Barnabas, and that many more Jewish people came to follow Christ in the years that followed. In fact, for the first several generations of the Church, a majority of those who considered themselves Christians were Jews. Nonetheless, Paul found in this hostility a call to preach the Gospel among the Gentiles, the non-Jewish Greeks of the eastern Mediterranean area. From the start of Jesus' ministry, many non-Jews had expressed an interest in him and his teachings, and Paul now took up their evangelization in a systematic way. This Sunday's second reading, written several decades after Paul's death, illustrates the way the Church's composition had changed during that time: a numberless crowd from every part of the human family now shares God's life in Christ.

This Sunday's brief Gospel reading emphasizes the unity among God, Jesus, and the disciples who continue his mission. The eternal life Jesus offers is not simply immortality. Those who hear and respond to Jesus' voice are drawn into the divine nature. God continues to work through Christ's disciples for the salvation of humanity, to ensure that all might not perish, but have eternal life.

Some questions for reflection:

How has the risen Christ shared his life with you?

What are the characteristics of the life you share with God?

Can you identify someone new with whom you can share the divine life you bear?

Today is also an important day in the life and culture of our nation. As we honor the gift of our living and deceased Mothers on this Mothers' Day, we give thanks to God for our Moms. I love that our brief Gospel for today gives fitting service to the shepherding ways of our Mothers. Happy Mother's Day to our Moms and guardians.

Peace,

Fr. Greg
